Course content

Philosophy 7.5 HE credits: The course covers moral and aesthetic values, and theories of these in western culture. The focus of the studies is the most common normative moral systems and the most common varieties of meta-ethical views. The course also covers basic problems of the concept of art (in a general sense). Different theories on the nature of art are covered and discussed in relation to concepts of knowledge.

Teaching and working methods

The course work consists mostly of independent literature studies. Lectures and group exercises will be added to this. The exercises are compulsory and in general imply work that should be carried out in advance.

Examination

The course is examined through written examinations, take-home examinations or through assignments that are presented continuously in group work.

Other information

Planning and implementation of a course must take its starting point in the wording of the syllabus. The course evaluation included in each course must therefore take up the question how well the course agrees with the syllabus. The course is carried out in such a way that both men's and women's experience and knowledge is made visible and developed.
